Chest Turns Optimistic

Drive Success At Half-Time

The Community Chest fund drive is nearing the half-way mark and has been "highly successful" so far, an official said last night.

A. G. Gilmore, executive secretary of the Chest, said $132,184.11 has been collected to date, including the first $5,000 from funds now rolling in from the residential canvass.

Meanwhile, H. A. Wallace, president of the Chest, flatly opposed a suggestion that the Chest will not meet its $300,000 goal.

CAMPAIGN FAILING

Campaign chairman Justin Harbord said Thursday the campaign is failing because industrial firms and well-to-do citizens are responding poorly to the appeal.

"Mr. Harbord and his committee are perhaps understandably in a state of high tension at the moment after months of hard work," Mr. Wallace said.

RESPOND GENEROUSLY

"I am sure that when the final returns are in that the groups now showing up badly will be found to have responded generously and that the full $300,000 target will be attained," he said.

Asked to comment on Mr. Wallace's statements, Mr. Harbord said, "I am pleased to agree with Mr. Wallace. At the moment the reporter interviewed me, my judgment was unduly colored by the receipt of some very depressing returns. Please extend my apologies to all concerned."

'Hot' Rain Hits B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rain with a radioactivity count 150 to 175 times the normal level fell on Vancouver Friday. It was believed caused by recent Russian nuclear tests.

Dean Gordon Shrum of the University of British Columbia said however there is no need to worry.

"It would have to be a lot higher than that before it would be dangerous," Dean Shrum said. "One doesn't worry about single tests. This will last only a day or so."

FORREST DON McCUISTON
. . . carried bomb on plane

He Left Plane—Boom!

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)—A 36-year-old aircraft design engineer, in failing health and financial trouble, was instantly killed by a foot-long bomb yesterday in the Wichita municipal airport building, 10 minutes after he got off a plane with 25 other persons aboard.

The victim, Forrest Don McCuiston, married and the father of a 10-year-old daughter, evidently carried the bomb with him in a brown paper package the past two days as he flew thousands of miles with hundreds of unsuspecting passengers.

INNOCENT VICTIMS

Authorities speculated that McCuiston had intended to explode the bomb while in an airplane, but changed his mind as he thought of the innocent victims who would be involved.

After buying a $25,000 insurance policy at the Wichita airport, he had flown on planes from Wichita to Denver, to Salt Lake City, to Las Vegas, to Phoenix, to Kansas City and then back to Wichita.

DEVASTATED

Ten minutes after he stepped off the plane here, he died in a thunderous blast in a long hallway leading between the main lobby and the control tower of the airport. The 40-foot-long corridor, lined with plate glass windows, was devastated.

Parts of his body were blown 50 feet. His twisted gold wedding ring was found in the grass beyond the plate glass windows in the corridor.

In Tulsa, Okla., McCuiston's home city, his father, F. D. McCuiston, said his son had been losing his eyesight (he wore extra - thick, horn - rimmed glasses), had heart trouble and was out of work.

ON PROBATION

He was having trouble getting work because he was on probation for income tax evasion.

His wife, Mary Louise, was in a state of near-collapse at their modest home in Tulsa. Their 10-year old daughter, Donna Louise, had not been told of the tragedy.

Wichita Police Chief Eugene Pond said that "all the evidence we are getting points to suicide."

NO ONE NEAR

Authorities believe McCuiston discarded the idea of exploding the bomb in an airplane in favor of the deserted corridor. They believe he first made sure no one else was near.

It was first thought that McCuiston was an innocent victim of the bomb—that he had found it on the Braniff airliner he had just departed, or in a telephone booth and was taking it to the lost-and-found office when it exploded.

CHARLES BANFE
. . . defeat in driving rainstorm

Down in Alaska

Flight Fails Pilot Safe

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Charles Banfe's attempt to break the solo distance record by flying non-stop from Tokyo to Miami, Fla., ended in failure last night as he set his light plane down at Cordova, Alaska, in a driving rainstorm.

The Palo Alto, Calif., pilot landed at 6.56 p.m. PST, 29 hours after he had left Tokyo in his attempt to break the 6,782-mile record set by Marion (Pat) Bolling, also of Palo Alto, last August.

FULL POWER

Banfe said he had to fly the last 15 minutes into Cordova, 200 miles southeast of here, under maximum power to hold the Mooney Midge monoplane in the air. He had to rely on radar to find the airstrip because of the rain.

"I wanted to try and baby it on to Miami," he said, "but I just couldn't do it.

"Nothing actually was wrong with the plane itself," he said. "I hit a couple of cold fronts off Shemya in the Aleutians and they ruined me.

QUIT OVER OCEAN

"I had to fly under extended power both times and I think it fouled the plugs. My engine quit twice because of carburetor ice while I was over the ocean."

The Pan American pilot said he would have his plane checked and probably take off today for New York to complete his flight around the world. He added that he would definitely try again for the non-stop record.

FEARED DOWN

Banfe was out of range of radio communication for about five hours yesterday morning, giving rise to the fear he might have been forced down.

No Return for Tax Dollar

'Rural Saanich Should Secede'

Secession of rural Saanich, north of Royal Oak, from the urban area is essential if Saanich council adopts a plan to concentrate development to the urban section, David C. Wright, 5367 Ruston, said last night.

Mr. Wright was commenting on hints by Reeve George Chatterton that development in the rural area might be "frozen" to force intensive development in the area already served by sewers and water.

A recommendation that a minimum lot size of three acres be imposed on the rural area and that local improvement petitions be ignored is part of an over-all town plan for the Greater Victoria area which will be completed soon by the Capital Region Planning Board.

"Is it fair to ask the rural area to continue to subsidize the urban part of Saanich?" Mr. Wright asked. "At present the rural area is not getting any return for its tax dollar.

Basis of Future Treaty Decisions

Scientists Tell 'Citizenship' Of Salmon from Size, Blood

SEATTLE (AP) — Five scientists who have learned how to determine whether a salmon was born in Alaska or Siberia are leaving for Tokyo this week to attend the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission meeting Oct. 20-Nov. 15.

They are Clinton E. Atkinson, Fred C. Cleaver and Reynold A. Fredin of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Pacific salmon investigation division; Dr. William F. Thompson and Dr. William A. Royce of the University of Washington.

Through bone structure, blood, scales, "associated organisms" and measurements of seven physical characteristics, the scientists can tell if a salmon came from the Alaska nursery or went to its first school under Soviet auspices.

The results of this research and the latest information on distribution of American salmon will be presented at the Tokyo session. It is expected to become the basis for fishing treaty decisions.

Scientists from Canada, Japan and the United States will attend the parley.

All Frightfully Elegant and Discreet

Soft Lights, Champagne and, of Course, Tea

Social Register 'Comes Out' Like Debutante

MONTREAL (CP) — Amid funereal dignity and a few muted giggles, Canada's first social register was unveiled Friday night at a peek-and-ponder champagne party.

The blue-bound, gold-embossed first edition of some 40,000 Canadians of "social prominence" was displayed publicly for the first time in the royal suite of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel.

Hushed, rather reverent reporters—selected, they were told, for good breeding, manners, graces and taste — glimpsed the book after sipping tea and lemon and then shared in a solemn toast in 1949 Charles Heidsieck champagne.

It was a moment to remember. There was the book—encased in a glass casket, seated ever so elegantly on a white satin cushion bathed in a boudoir-pink glow from one small light bulb in the darkened room.

All the reporters could see were two pages of names—from Gagnon to Gerin-Lajoie in Montreal, which had 97 pages of names altogether.

Toronto had 56 pages of names; Ottawa, 33½ pages; Halifax, 14; Vancouver, 26; Winnipeg and Edmonton, 22 each; Saskatoon, five and Whitehorse, one. There were hundreds of other Canadian communities listed.

Reporters couldn't browse through the pages. But they could submit 10 names to be checked in a nearby locked room.

Charlotte Whitton, former Ottawa mayor, is in the hallowed pages. So are Trade Minister Churchill, Finance Minister Fleming, Transport Minister Hees, industrialist E. P. Taylor, Socialist Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan, bank president James Muir, columnist Gregory Clark.

Premier Duplessis of Quebec is listed. Timber king H. R. Macmillan of Vancouver made it, too. But hockey player Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens isn't in the pages. Nor are John Wayne and Frank Shuster, two Canadian comedians.

Host at the party was David B. Crombie, editor of Mayfair magazine, Toronto, vice-president of the Social Register of Canada and publisher of the book.

"Would you care to join me for tea," said Mr. Crombie, wearing a tailor-made grey suit and chatting quietly with the 20-odd guests. Young ladies with cultured English accents served.

Like curious friends at an Irish wake, the group walked past the royal white bathroom, past the locked door and into the blue book room.

"So that's the body . . . the book, I mean," quipped one woman reporter. Someone giggled.

And then, forgetting their good graces, they stuck their noses near the glass and stared.

The book is obtainable by members of the Social Register Association of Canada. You get into this group by getting your name in the register itself and paying a $25 membership fee.

The book is being mailed out to "not quite" 10,000 people, Mr. Crombie said.

"What kind of mail?

"Second class mail," he replied.

Our Mayor's Not Listed —He Couldn't Care Less!

Mayor Percy Scurrah doesn't think he and Mrs. Scurrah are listed as socially acceptable in the Social Register of Canada, but he doesn't seem concerned.

"They wrote to us, but we didn't go for it," he chuckled yesterday, "and I know a lot of other people who didn't go for it either."

Whites' Solutions Run From Kind to Brutal

Majority Remains Hostile

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

No simple solution exists to the problem of the Indian in the modern world. These great-grandchildren of "stone age" native peoples may go to high school and university, but are torn between two cultures. Many are raised in villages with no inside plumbing, must face a struggle to cope with conditions at home and away from it. —(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

* * *

"I've lived close to the Indians all my life, and you can't tell me a thing about them," a white businessman said boldly. "They're dirty, lazy and drunken, and they'll never change."

He wasn't describing the Indians. He was drawing a word-picture of the inside of his mind: very dark, its windows shut for years against ideas and evidence.

He had lived next to the Indians all his life but he had never tried to understand them, or even take a close look at them: a people who had kept their spirit alive under a crushing burden of troubles. He hadn't noticed the great-grandchildren of stone-age hunters and fishermen who were now beginning to go to high school and university.

Knew Nothing

He said he knew all about Indians. In fact he knew nothing about them, except what they looked like and how some of them behaved. But he didn't know what made them behave as they did. And he didn't want to learn.

I canvassed many people's views. The most rigid, stereotyped and hostile opinions came from those who professed to know all about the Indians. Some people declared themselves broad-minded, then made statements that were narrow and patronizing.

Some said: "We've done a lot for them, but they don't appreciate it."

Poor Deal

A great number of people said something like this: "I don't know much about the subject, but I think the Indians have had a poor deal."

Others put forward various plans, ranging from kindly to brutal, for helping the Indians out. Most opinions were over-simplified. People said the Indians would be all right if they drank less, or worked more; if white men stopped exploiting them, made them all move off their reserves, or left them alone.

In fact, the situation of the Indians is far from simple, and there is no one measure that will solve their problems. A few Indians have been wholly initiated into the white man's way of life. Many are torn between two cultures.

Resist Change

Some of the old dig in their heels and resist change. Some of the young half-believe in spells and supernatural birds and animals, half-obey the hereditary leaders and the power of their crests, but are also drawn strongly to the white man's world.

They fight a many-sided battle, against the conservative elders, and against sneering whites who don't understand the ancestral ways. They try to earn a place in the white man's world, yet are haunted by a wish to recapture the old skills and beliefs before they are lost.

'Mist on River'

The feeling of the Indians' many-sided struggle is conveyed in Hubert Evan's novel "Mist on the River" (Copp Clark, Toronto, 1954, $3.50). It is not one of the world's great novels, but it is written with sympathy and restraint, it is readable, and it is the only book on the market that takes a reader inside the unique psychological world of the coast Indian—or to be more exact, the upriver Indian of the Skeena.

Other Side

On one side are the Indians, a century away from the stone age, racked by inner conflicts, some of them almost neurotically suspicious and sensitive, the weaker of them so discouraged by rebuffs that they have sunk into a state of apathy.

On the other side are the white people, inheriting 2,000 years of civilization, better educated and more prosperous than the Indians, yet most of them knowing nothing about the Indians and making no effort to learn.

Many white people have been raised in the Puritan tradition, which groups together hard work, thrift, piety and material success as allied virtues. Many white people have been brought up to believe (at least subconsciously) that they belong to a superior race; that the folkways of their tribe are the only possible ways; and that the customs of other races are either absurd or disgusting.

Done a Lot

The following comment was made to me by a kindly old lady who was trying her best to be fair-minded:

"I think you take the side of the Indians too much. I wish you would put the government side of it in a bit more. The white people have really done a lot for the Indians. I lived for some years at Hazelton, and although we didn't meet the Indians socially, we were friends with them. We used to meet them on the trail, and we knew them all by name, and we would almost shake hands with them. We really were friends.

Riff-Raff Came

"It was when the railway came in that they spoiled the Indians. There were dagos and all sorts of riff-raff building the railway, and they brought liquor in and the young Indians learned bad ways. At one time you used to be able to walk along the trail, and when you met an Indian, you knew he was a friend. But after a time you might not be safe. I took a big dog with me for protection."

"Did you have some experiences that led you to be afraid of the Indians?"

Girl Killed

"There was an Indian murdered a girl down at Port Essington, and we thought that if it happened down there it could happen up where we were. Oh, there were a lot of good people among the Indians, and the white people did a lot for them, but at the school, when the hunting and trapping time came along, a lot of the children would be away.

"I taught school myself, but not at the Indian school. But I had some of them—you know, if they had a drop of white blood in them they would call themselves white. They were good people most of them, living decent moral lives, although there was one married to an Indian woman, a squaw, who wasn't behaving the way she should be.

One-Sided!

"I get mad when I read your articles. You seem to be giving all the Indians' side and not the white people's side. But I lived near them for years. In the W.A. to the church that I belong to, we have adopted a school at Aklavik, and we are sending clothes up there to them.

"So you see, the white people do a lot for the Indians. But some of them have big modern ears and live in shacks; they have no pride in themselves."

Half-Breeds

"The real Indians are all right," said a man. "It's these half-breeds I don't like." This was another theme that came up several times in the hostile comments about Indians. Behind it, as far as I could judge, was the idea that the Indians were all right as long as they kept their place, which was a place of subservience. But when they began to intermarry and take on the privileges of white men, they were going too far.

In fact many are intermarrying. About one third of the B.C. Indian marriages each year involve a non-Indian husband or wife. This trend provides one of the greatest hopes for increased understanding between the races.

"We're killing them with kindness," said a West Coast Vancouver Island hotel proprietor. "As long as we let them stay on reserves by themselves, not mixing with us, and as long as we keep helping them, they'll never get back their self-respect.

"We've taken their fish and their seals. We'll have to educate them to work at all kinds of jobs along with the rest of us. We won't be able to do anything until they are going to the ordinary schools from the start.

"The old people should be looked after as long as they live. As for letting them have liquor and keep their reserves as well—it's encouraging them to stay as they are."

"Yes," I said, "but the Indians feel that their reserves are a right, owed to them as a small payment on what the white men took from them."

The hotel proprietor shrugged. "As long as they're in places by themselves they won't change. A lot of them let the whole winter go by and never do a stroke of work on their boats. But when the salmon season starts, they have the boats out on the ways or on the beach, and they don't get started fishing for another month. Or they don't look after their boats at all. There are lots of Indians going away out fishing in boats that you could put your hand through, they're so rotten.

Good Idea, but---

"They won't put in gardens. I asked them why they don't keep chickens and feed some of the garbage to them, or why they don't put in a few vegetables. They say 'that's a good idea,' but they never get around to doing it.

"There's too much sentimentality about the Indians," said a man whose views are ruthless and extreme. "It should be survival of the fittest."

"The trouble with you people of English origin," said my friend, a man of Continental birth, "is that you suffer from guilt feelings." If your guilt feelings led to any action it wouldn't be so bad. But they only lead to outbursts of sentimentality."

"Stop pampering the Indians, and the good ones will survive, the weak ones will die off." I asked him whether he was willing to apply that same treatment to non-Indians, and he said that he was. But I doubt if he meant that.

Hong Kong to Vancouver

Pacific 'Dream Trip' Set by Solo Sailor

MANILA (UPI)—An Englishman, who will try to cross the Pacific in a frail sailboat to fulfill a boyhood dream, said today he expects to sail for Hong Kong next week en route to Canada, his planned destination.

Brian Platt, 28, arrived Saturday in Manila, completing a four-month voyage which he began alone in Singapore.

Platt said he plans to sail via Japan across the Pacific north of the Hawaiian Islands.

Platt expressed confidence his 27-foot "Chempaka" cutter, which is equipped with a low-powered radio and some life-saving devices, would take him safely to Vancouver, sometime in March.

"I shall take a job in Canada and sell my boat upon reaching my goal," Platt said.

Platt, a graduate of Oxford University, resigned as administrative oficer in Her Majesty's overseas civil service office in Kuala Lumpur, Malaya, to make the voyage which he had dreamed of making even as a child.

Tanker Men Vote to Oust SIU as Agent

VANCOUVER (CP)—Imperial Oil Company announced Friday the crews of its two coastal tankers have voted in a government-supervised ballot to decertify the Seafarers' International Union as their bargaining agent.

Howard Coxon, manager of the company's marketing division here, said the vote was 7-3 in favor of decertification.

It was not known immediately what effect the announcement would have on the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union who staged a wildcat strike Friday morning when SIU information pickets were placed at Imperial's nearby IOCO refinery and its warehouse here.

The SIU last week called a strike over wages against Imperial in an attempt to thwart the decertification bid, but the crews of the tankers ignored union orders.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THREE-YEAR-OLD Michael, being large for his age, has almost outgrown the baby's seat of those shopping baskets on wheels at the supermarket. But he can still squeeze in, and he chortles with joy as he sets out for his ride through the gleaming aisles of provisions.

His mother divides her shopping between supermarket and neighborhood store, which have their separate advantages, one of them being more streamlined and (in certain commodities) cheaper; the other being more friendly and closer to home.

Older brother John, an intense, loyal boy, always preferred the neighborhood store, but Michael likes the supermarket, and looks forward to his occasional rides in the wire trolley.

* * *

As he trundles past the cliffs of canned goods he waves his arms imperiously and commands his mother to buy "Mato juice! Olives!"

Among the mountains of vegetables he calls for "Ondions! Celery! Matos!"

As he wheels past the glaciers of perishables, perched in his place with the jaunty self-assurance of the commander of a military convoy passing through a strange colonial land, he calls out further orders:

"Beef, with lots of fat on it. Turkey." He is pointing at a chicken, but to Michael, all fowls are turkeys.

* * *

His vehicle rounds a corner, and an exciting new vista opens up. "Dog food!" he clamors. "Food for the budgie!"

Over there to the west are the hills of starch. "Buns with ice on!" Michael commands. He knows his way around the store as well as his mother does, and before he turns each corner he can tell roughly what lies ahead.

In the lineup for the cashier he makes a half-hearted appeal for candy. But he knows he won't get it, because it isn't his candy day. He inspects his mother calmly with brown eyes to see if she means it; decides she does, and waits in his seat without a murmur.

* * *

If his worrisome green-eyed brother John had been here, there would have been a jealous fuss all the way because Michael was riding and he wasn't; and at the refusal of candy there would have been a screech of frustration.

But John is at school now, grinning his fiendish little grin as reads the primer, or solemnly wrinkling his brow in concentration as he plays with his friends.

Rabbi Scores Race Hatred in Canada

TORONTO (UPI) — Toronto Rabbi Abraham Feinberg spoke out last night against the danger of letting racial hatreds seep into the minds of Canadians.

"If hatred of people for the color of their skin were allowed to grow our society would crumble," he said.

"Such racial wickedness would undermine the basic brotherhood ideal of Judaism and Christianity."

He told his congregation that feelings of racial prejudice existed in Canada and in Toronto.

"It differs from the South in degree, but not in kind."

The anti-Semitic actions followed a wave of anti-religious threats Thursday.

LITLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Police revealed Friday night that bomb threats had been made against two downtown Jewish synagogues here.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Five men were charged Friday with the bombing of Atlanta's Jewish Temple under a law that could bring death sentences.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Little Rock Private School Corporation announced yesterday it will open an all-white high school for senior students only, next Monday.

Ford 'Real Buyer' In Huge Art Sale

LONDON (Reuters)—American millionaires Paul Mellon and Henry Ford II were reported yesterday to be the "real" buyers of four of seven impressionist paintings auctioned here Wednesday night.

British newspapers say Mellon and Ford bought through American dealers, despite denials in New York Thursday.

Sale of the seven paintings at Sotheby's, London's premier auctioneers, fetched a record for a single auction of £781,000.

New York dealer George Keller is reported to have paid £122,000 on behalf of Mellon, financier son of the late Andrew Mellon, one-time U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, for paintings by Cezanne and Manet.

Knoedler's another firm of New York dealers, is reported to have paid £90,000 for a Cezanne canvas on behalf of Ford.

No More Jail for Fugitive

Really Free After 27 Years

DETROIT (AP) — Victor Moore is no more. He has been replaced by Lee Murray and he is a free man, really free for the first time in 27 years.

Home with his wife and five children after two frightening days in jail, the 55-year-old Murray knows the police no longer are after him.

Using the name Victor Moore, he was arrested Tuesday for not paying a jaywalking ticket. Police fingerprinted him as a matter of routine.

His prints matched those of Lee Murray, who escaped from an Alabama road gang in 1931. Confronted with the proof of his fingerprints, Moore admitted he was Murray.

He said he escaped while serving three to four years for a burglary that netted two suitcases of clothes. After drifting through the South, he came to Detroit eight years ago and married.

With his past uncovered, Murray awaited extradition to Alabama to finish his sentence and pay for his escape.

But Frank Lee, deputy state prison commissioner, notified Detroit police:

"As far as Alabama is concerned, the Detroit authorities can release him."

He pointed out that Murray was almost at the end of his sentence when he escaped.

A relieved Murray said:

"Now people can know what my real name is. I can go anywhere I want. I'm a free man. This thing has been worrying me for a long time."

Menon Denounces 'Amen' to Geneva

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — V. K. Krishna Menon, India's defence minister, objected in the United Nations Friday to assigning the disarmament problem to "one or two countries, no matter how powerful" and suggested that all 81 members of the UN General Assembly make up a disarmament commission.

He deplored any move to relegate the problem to the forthcoming Geneva conferences with the implication that "all we had to say was 'amen' to their efforts."

Menon took issue with an earlier British assertion that the disarmament picture did "not look so bad."

In fact, the Indian delegate said, military expenditures now are "phenomenal" and new nuclear weapons would make the atomic bombing of Hiroshima "child's play" by comparison.

A Firm Committal Is Wanted

THE local labor council has received a letter from the federal deputy labor minister reassuring it about the winter employment situation. He takes an optimistic line, admittedly a better attitude for a government than a pessimistic outlook, and says in effect that economic conditions are on the upswing and the improvement is expected to continue. There is of necessity a longish-term tinge to this, of course, and even with the best of good will it does not relieve the mind of a worker who is currently being laid off. Quite naturally he is looking for some immediate work to do.

It is not the business of governments to provide work for everyone in a free democratic land; that could only be done at the price of loss of a personal liberty which would be anathema even to individuals temporarily unemployed. The duty of government lies in doing all in its power to create the atmosphere under which industrial activity may be spurred and in lending assistance and encouragement wherever this is practicable. This the federal deputy labor minister claims is being done, and there will be no tendency to doubt such a statement.

Where a government has work projects of its own, however, the situation is different. It is here that direct relief may be given, and it is in this connection that concern has frequently been voiced of late over the lay-offs forced on the two local shipyards. It happens that there are warships and ferries to be built, and Victoria's claims for a share of the work cannot fairly be passed by. If instant assurance could be secured that orders will soon be placed here the unemployment picture would be brighter.

To that end, representatives of both management and labor will wait on Defence Minister Pearkes when he arrives today, to bespeak the placing of destroyer-escort contracts with the local yards. All during the years of his parliamentary service Mr. Pearkes has been assiduous in the interests of his constituents and no one can have a better appreciation of what these ship contracts will mean to workers of the Victoria yards. It is to be hoped therefore that he is able to confirm in specific terms that their expectations are founded. The ships have to be built. This area can build them. It warrants receiving some of them to build, and the sooner the work can be started the better all round.

While they are at it, the representatives of management and labor might well wait also on the provincial government. It has ferry ships to build and the same arguments apply. It is likely also that these could be started earlier than the naval vessels, so that there would be comfort in an early announcement that some of the work will come to this district. The need is urgent and routine procedures should not be allowed to cause undue delay.

Changing Trade Patterns

BICKERING over tariff action, understandable as it sometimes may be, is not likely to solve the underlying cause of low market prices in world trade. For base metals, as an example, the root cause is oversupply; a capacity to produce beyond existing consumption levels. For the last few years this factor was almost submerged in artificial recourse to stockpiling under governmental direction; temporary agreements to limit market offerings; and, in some instances, by prolonged strikes having the same general effect. In tin, copper, lead, zinc and not a few of the new industrial types of metals and minerals the general pattern can be traced; with Soviet dumping as the new development on an already dislocated world market.

Discussions at Geneva yesterday at the GATT meeting witnessed a variety of complaints against metal quota restrictions and tariff action, including a formal complaint by Canada against United States lead and zinc curbs. South American countries, however, could say the same thing. After all has been said, the basic situation would still be over-production on the slowed-down markets of the world. What applies particularly to base metals is also true in some degree of textiles, grains, lumber and numbers of other products. Market shrinkage has led to stiffer competition, abandonment in some part of co-operative practices and acrimony among friends.

It is important to realize however that the trade patterns of the world are changing, not only for Canada but for every other land that has surpluses to export. When metal buying resumes in heavier volume Rhodesia may attain a position that will affect continental buying materially. The new European trade pools were not specifically designed for the benefit of the dollar bloc. Canada has much to discover yet as to how these and other alignments will affect its traditional markets in the export field, and also as to the possibility of creating new ones.

Policemen Learn a Lesson

A RECENT traffic accident had a somewhat unexpected sequel in police court. The victims of the accident were two police officers who, while investigating an earlier accident at the same spot, were struck by a passing car driven by a woman. In consequence the motorist was charged with careless driving, and a conviction accompanied perhaps by a sharp penalty might have appeared to be a foregone conclusion. Instead, the charge against her was dismissed after the blame for the accident had been transferred to the policemen—policemen moreover who were on the roadway in the performance of duty.

The circumstances as unfolded before the magistrate were interesting. It was dark and raining. Traffic was moving in both directions. The policemen were wearing dark clothing without armbands or anything else that might have distinguished them in the murk. In the words of defending counsel the officers in this adverse combination of conditions were virtually invisible — while standing moreover on the travelled portion of the street, to the left sides of the vehicles they were inspecting.

This goes to show that police officers sometimes can be just as careless of their own safety as can other people. It is not at all uncommon to see traffic officers taking much the same sort of risks with their personal safety, apparently quite unconsciously. More often than not a policeman having occasion to flag down a private car will park his own car or motorcycle in front of it—or even alongside sometimes—and engage in conversation with the driver through the left-hand window when he could just as easily and far more safely approach the car from its right. In daylight it is an inconsiderate practice at best, since it is liable to obstruct traffic needlessly; in the dark it is dangerous — as these two officers became painfully aware.

Interpreting the News

Extremists Out-Manoeuvred

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH the timing of a political veteran, Gen. de Gaulle has moved decisively to draw the fangs of the alliance of generals and right-wing politicians that has ruled Algeria for the last six months.

The group's successful defiance of the civil authority in Paris last May started the train of events that brought the general to power. Its active role in Algeria and its implicit threat to metropolitan France contributed heavily to the overwhelming vote in favor of de Gaulle's constitutional reforms.

As long as they played an active role in the committees of public safety, de Gaulle ruled Algeria only by their consent. The knowledge of their potential veto power was the focal point of resistance to his constitutional proposals and created misgivings among many voters who approved them.

* * *

Now, barely two weeks after the referendum that gave him his popular mandate, the general has forced a showdown on his dangerous allies with his flat order to the army to get out of politics.

The Algerian committees had used de Gaulle's name to justify their rebellion against authority. Henceforth they could be Gaullists or rebels but would have to choose between the two.

To the politicians, the choice became comparatively insignificant when the army elected to obey orders. Without military support, they had no hope of maintaining their authority.

* * *

Some of the more hot-headed committee members talked of organizing general strikes. But other leaders read the handwriting on the wall.

The resignation from the Algiers committee of Leon Delbecque, one of the principal organizers of the insurrection, was an additional blow to the morale of those who hoped to keep their independence of action. His letters of resignation said continuance of the committees "would run the risk of bringing about confusion and tarnish a work of which we can be proud."

The rightists' obvious course was to work for victory in the coming elections to enforce their demands for integration of Algeria with metropolitan France and all-out prosecution of the war against the Arab nationalists who sought its independence.

Tranquillizer, Please

In the Days Of the Bomb

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

"ISN'T the world in an awful mess!" exclaimed my landlady as she brought me my morning paper.

"I was just glancing over the front page headlines," she said, "and there's nothing but war, war everywhere. Even here at home there's no peace, what with all these strikes. As if there weren't enough men out of work already—I can't understand it!"

Neither could I, and I shrugged off the problem.

Thinking it over, my mind ran back to the days when the world was in a similar mess before and during the First World War, and I recalled H. G. Well's story, "In The Days of The Comet."

* * *

The gist of that story is that while the nations were at war there appeared a large comet which was approaching nearer and nearer to the earth. It finally struck the atmosphere and impregnated it with a new kind of gas that changed the belligerents and all mankind into agreeable and co-operative socialists. Wells didn't call them socialists, but as he himself was a belligerent socialist and probably realized that he was partly responsible for the mess the world was in, he introduced the comet as a quick tranquillizer of all parties.

The story is told by a man who was a socialist before the great change occurred. He is discussing the world situation with a scientist friend:

"I wish at times," said I, with a gesture at the heavens, "that comet of yours would indeed strike this world—and wipe us all away, strikes, wars, tumults, jealousies, and all the wretchedness of life!"

"Ah!" said Parload, "it could only add to the miseries of life."

"What would?"

"Collision with a comet. It would only throw things back. It would only make what was left of life more savage than at present."

"But why should anything be left of life?" said I . . .

That might have been written about the threat of the Atomic Bomb today, and with more certainty that there would be nothing left. And yet we are piling up lethal missiles and testing their power of mass annihilation as though we intended to blow up the earth if the United Nations finally failed to find a peaceful solution to our international problems.

Well's idea of the Comet, like that of "The Time Machine" and his other pieces of scientific fiction, was highly imaginative; but some of his forecasts have been realized in our own time. And while we can hardly expect a comet to come to our aid in resolving the mess the world is in today, the idea has great scientific possibilities.

* * *

How about a sputnik that would broadcast a tranquillizing gas into our atmosphere and change, at least, our war-minded international politicians and strike-minded labor leaders into sane and peaceful moderators?

The same effect might be accomplished if our scientists could invent a bomb that, instead of deadly nuclear fall-out, would impregnate the atmosphere with laughing gas. Just imagine the effect that would have upon the tragically-serious proceedings of the United Nations! The delegates would die laughing at each other — and at themselves individually.

Bring on the Laughing Bomb!

Reports from Ottawa

LIBERAL Leader Lester Pearson returned to town Thursday night after his air-testing, fence-mending, team-encouraging tour from Tory British Columbia to Tory Nova Scotia.

As a result of this first-hand assessment of Liberal strength and prospects across the land he should be considerably wiser — or at least better informed. And probably quite disenchanted.

For one thing, it will not have escaped Pearson that the people, in the casual, off-handed way they have of passing judgment on happenings in Ottawa, think John Diefenbaker is doing a good job. And he will have noted that there is very little difference between that attitude and the attitude the people had towards the Liberals in the days before political decadence beset the former regime.

* * *

But now it is the Tories who are the repository of the confidence and hopes of most of the people. They have overflowed on the right, pushing the Socreds into oblivion, and on the left to push the Grits to the narrow edge of the precipice.

Pearson's job is to get the Grits back into the middle of the road. But what can he offer the people that the Tories have not already offered or, better still, given? What can Liberalism do to attract great gobs of votes from a party which is Conservative only in name; which in many ways appears more little-l liberal than the Liberals who were last in office?

* * *

It must be five years since I earned Louis St. Laurent's dislike by stating that under his leadership the political legacy left to the party by Mackenzie King was being dissipated.

King was both a thinker and a doer, as well as being a master of the craft of politics. With his two chubby hands he shaped the destiny of this country for a quarter century, never popular with the people but never out of tune with them.

When he left public life 10 years ago next month the Liberal machine was under a full head of steam. He had swerved to the left in accord with post-war thinking. He had produced policies based on an intuitive comprehension of the people's wants and needs, and his ministers had vigorously carried them out.

The Liberals didn't lose last year because C. D. Howe was autocratic and Walter Harris didn't cut taxes—although those things didn't help. They lost because they ran out of steam. The head man didn't keep the fire stoked with enough new ideas, policies, programs. He lost touch with the people — if indeed he ever was in touch with them. He didn't know what they wanted. Neither did George Drew. But then a man came along who did.

* * *

If Mike Pearson ever leads the Grits to victory it will be because (1) John Diefenbaker is dead, or (2) Pearson has absorbed and identified himself with the grass roots feeling of this country the way Diefenbaker did.

That's why this trip of Pearson's is so important. He heard unhappy tidings many places he went, but he started learning what makes voters tick.

The Packsack

of GREGORY CLARK

ONE of my friends has been laid up a whole year with a heart condition. Normally a man is put to bed for six weeks or so, and told to take it easy for a couple of months. But this was a more serious matter.

Being a man of great energy and zest, his friends could not see how he was going to spend either a year in bed or near it.

But he discovered reading, for the first time in his life. Any reading he had ever done, since his schooldays, was of paperbacks while riding in a day coach between cities, or maybe on the summer cottage veranda on rainy days.

Some genius in his family put him onto Sir John Franklin's "Narrative of a Journey to the Shores of the Polar Sea in 1819-20-21-22." They got him a beat-up old 1824 edition in the two volumes.

And he was away. With no possibility of hurry, he took his time over every detail of that wonderful adventure into the sub-arctic and arctic wilderness of Canada, starting at York Factory on Hudson Bay and penetrating to the Arctic Ocean by way of Great Slave Lake and the Coppermine River, by canoe and on foot. A tremendous tale, full of anecdote and particulars.

What a springboard into Canadiana! At the end of his year, he knows more about Canada than most scholars, for he has read 211 books, nearly all of them forgotten or overlooked by the rest of us.

The Age of Hyprocrisy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

SOME day the historians may describe the 1950s as "the age of hypocrisy." At a time when the so-called "liberals" have been shouting loudly that "all men are equal" and that the liberty of an individual and his "freedom of choice" must not be restrained or restricted, the worker is being compelled in millions of cases to accept a system of private slavery, conducted by labor-union masters, as the price of a job in free America.

The denunciation of the "right to work" laws that have been adopted by many states is an example of how the principle of freedom to work, as guaranteed by the constitution itself, is being flagrantly disregarded.

Not a single one of the so-called "liberals" of prominence has ventured to make a militant fight for the "right to work" laws which are an issue in the elections this year in several states, particularly California. Yet the Supreme Court of the United States, in its historic 1954 decision against the continuance of racial segregation in the public schools of the District of Columbia, said:

"Although the court has not assumed to define 'liberty' with any great precision, that term is not confined to mere freedom from bodily restraint. Liberty under law extends to the full range of conduct which the individual is free to pursue, and it cannot be restricted except for a proper governmental objective."

This definition of "liberty" would appear to invalidate the provision of the Taft-Hartley Act of 1947 which —unless state laws forbid it—permits employers and unions to agree on a worker to join a union within 30 days after he is hired, or lose his job. State laws barring compulsory unionization were upheld in 1949 by the Supreme Court, but there has been no decision against the federal statute which legalizes involuntary membership in labor unions in most of the states of the Union today.

The department of justice has no unit or division that devotes itself wholly to the "civil rights" of the workers of the United States, and hence there has been no effort to get the federal courts to issue injunctions against employers and unions who conspire together under a plainly unconstitutional federal law to compel citizens to give up their conscientious beliefs and join an organization they don't want to join. The unwilling "member" is also deprived of his property in violation of the "due process" amendment of the constitution, because he is forced against his will to pay dues to an organization he does not care to join.

The "right to work" doctrine is founded on the words of the Declaration of Independence and is imbedded in the bill of rights of the constitution, but the politicians on the so-called "liberal" side are apparently afraid of the labor-union bosses.

Who is making the fight against this kind of illiberalism? Certainly not the spurious "liberals" who are trying to defeat a true liberal like Senator Knowland of California when he stands up for the right of every man, irrespective of color or creed, to get and keep a job without paying tribute to a union.

Nor have the members of the Eisenhower administration been consistent in claiming that this issue is a "state matter" and hence not one calling for presidential or vice-presidential advice to the people. For, while the president issued a direct appeal to voters in Virginia and Arkansas just before local referendums dealing with school issues were held, there has been a noticeable unwillingness on the part of administration spokesmen to tell the people of California and other states, where the "right to work" principle is at stake, that they ought to uphold the "law of the land."

The Senate rackets committee in recent months has exposed monopoly, illegal pressure, fraudulent use of dues money and criminal activity in the control and management of certain big labor unions. Yet the last Congress, most of whose members are this autumn up for re-election, failed to insure by the passage of legislation the right of American citizens to "life, liberty, and property," as guaranteed to them by the constitution.

One would think that, in the face of such hypocrisy, the American people would be ready to repudiate the illiberals, but the truth is that the channels of public opinion have been to a large extent adulterated by false cries that the "right to work" laws are simply a device to destroy legitimately operated labor unions. The voters generally have been misinformed on this issue. The fact that such a misrepresentation can be given wide currency is proof of the hypocrisy of the age—that the preservation of all the liberties of the individual citizen is not really the concern of many articulate persons who call themselves "liberals."

Letters to the Editor

Social Domination

In his letter, "Key To Living," in the Colonist of Oct. 16, Mr. J. G. Jenkins informs us that in a sane social order of social ownership 75 per cent of our population now engaged in what he terms unnecessary tasks could be put to work in such manner that average living standards could be doubled in a very short time.

But Mr. Jenkins uses the term "put to work". Does he mean by that his idea of "social" ownership entails domination or giving orders as to where we are to work and how much we are to do? How else "persuade" the average human animal of today?

Surely he does not think the human population of 100 per cent being willing, without the club of needed wages or the big stick of dictatorship, to engage in the work necessary to double the present living standard when already the average worker is deriving all all that he can use.

L. J. PEPPER.

Something Accomplished

I wish to thank Mrs. Hilary Young for her reply to my letter in The Colonist of Oct. 9.

I realize, most happily, that the broadcast to which I referred did not originate in Canada. However, modern communications being what they are, particularly radio and television, the influence of such things cannot be contained within national boundaries. If I have blood poison in my hand is my arm safe? For the same reason, in my opinion, the issue becomes one which rises above the national level and should cause concern to Canadians. If Canadians are sufficiently aroused to see that it does not happen here, at least something will be accomplished.

(Mrs.) GEORGIA ORR.

Early Church History

It was a very interesting article in The Islander of Sunday, Oct. 12, about St. Michael and All Angels' Church at Royal Oak. I would like, though, to add the name of one well-known clergyman who was rector of St. Luke's Church, Cedar Hill, and was also in charge of St. Michael's before it was made a separate parish.

Rev. H. A. Collison followed Archdeacon Robert Connell in 1908, and I worked under him as lay reader in 1909 to 1911, when I left the district. Mr. Collison and I held services on alternate Sunday afternoons at St. Michael's and at the old Carey Road Hall near the junction of Carey and Wilkinson Roads, long since done away with.

Mr. Collison, afterwards archdeacon, was the second son of the great Archdeacon Collison, pioneer missionary of Metlakatla, who practically converted the Haida Indians from cannibalism, and also translated a great deal of the New Testament into Indian dialects.

I think Rev. H. A. Collison was made archdeacon in 1912 and went to St. Peter's, Quamichan. He may be remembered as a great cricketer, playing for Victoria for many years.

Civil Servants

To Get Rights By 1961

CALGARY (CP) — President of the Civil Service Association of Canada predicted yesterday all of Canada's 180,000 civil servants will have collective bargaining rights within three years.

J. C. Best of Ottawa said collective bargaining was the key to salary and turnover problems. To gain the right to bargain collectively the association is willing to accept as binding arbitration awards.

"We must get away from this hat-in-hand approach which allows the government to flatly deny our requests," Mr. Best said.

He said a request by the association to Prime Minister Diefenbaker for bargaining talks was expected to be dealt with by the government before the end of November and Mr. Diefenbaker was "very interested."

ONE PROVINCE

Some 30,000 civil servants belong to the CSAC while 70,000 are members of other civil servant associations. He said Saskatchewan is the only province in which civil servants have complete collective bargaining rights.

"Since the war working conditions in the government have slid behind industry and civil servants are beginning to realize that it is because their unions have it better," he said.

Mother Shoots Self, Three Children

Life 'Sham, Pretence'

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—A 40-year-old mother who felt "boxed in" by the "sham and pretence" of her respectable upper-middle class existence, took a pistol and methodically killed her three children and herself last night.

Mrs. David E. Horne wrote in a suicide note to her husband:

"I can't talk so I'll write. I can't stay boxed up any longer. The children and I don't fit in anywhere. We're not really wanted . . .

"I tried but I never really had a chance. It's all sham and pretence.

"I am second to TV and books.

"I am supposed to be well off . . ."

Her husband, successful plumbing contractor David E. Horne, was out buying a 1959 station wagon as a birthday surprise for his wife. He came home to their comfortable three-bedroom, modern residence to find his entire family dead or dying.

Mrs. Horne lay mortally wounded on her bed, a .22-calibre pistol lying beside her. Marilyn, 8, was dead and David Robert, 11, and John Aaron, 9, were dying.

"I just can't understand it," Horne told state's attorney investigator George W. Greer. "I knew she was sometimes depressed but I never realized she was that bad."

'Contradicts Spirit of GATT'

U.S. Lead, Zinc Ban Attacked by Canada

GENEVA (Reuters)—Trade Minister Gordon Churchill of Canada yesterday criticized the United States for imposing restrictive quotas on "the important basic industrial materials" of lead and zinc.

Speaking at the 13th session of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade which opened Thursday, Churchill said:

"In the view of the Canadian government these measures are in contradiction with the terms and the spirit of GATT and constitute a serious impairment of benefits and concessions accruing to Canada under GATT."

He said the imposition of restrictions by the United States "can only serve to shift the burden of readjustment to world market conditions on to producers in other countries."

On balance-of-payment import restrictions, Churchill said Canada has been particularly affected by their continued maintenance in many of the country's traditional markets.

"We are convinced that the early removal of discriminatory restrictions . . . would be the greatest single immediate contribution that could be made to the expansion of world trade," he said.

Churchill said the six-nation European common market—Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—would pose outside suppliers with a tariff disadvantage.

Escape 'Grave Mistake'

Scharnhorst Run —'Inexcusable'

SIR ROBERT WATSON-WATT . . . human error

TORONTO (CP)—Sir Robert Watson-Watt says it was "absolutely inexcusable" the German battleship Scharnhorst ran through the English Channel without being caught during the Second World War.

He told the Royal Canadian Military Institute Thursday night the escape was one of the grave mistakes of the war resulting directly from human error.

PEARL HARBOR

Others were the Pearl Harbor bombing and the neglect of a device known as the High Frequency Direction Finder, which a United States Navy official considered as important as radar. Sir Robert, inventor of radar, said a British aircraft missed the first chance of spotting the Scharnhorst and its accompanying heavy cruiser Gneisenau when a fuse on its radar blew.

NINETEEN PLOTS

Later during the ships' breakout through the Strait of Dover radar-equipped aircraft made 19 separate plots of the position of the Germans on one occasion.

"It was one of the most beautiful pieces of radar observation ever made on aircraft," Sir Robert said.

"It was absolutely inexcusable that the Germans got away. And I would like to say unbelievable except for the fact that they did get away."

HUFF DUFF

The direction finder, also known as the Huff Duff, was not used on British ships until 1941 although perfected in 1923. A U.S. Navy officer advocated the system for U.S. ships, with the result that most of them were equipped with it before those of the Royal Navy.

Japan has 3,000,000 fishermen and their families dependent on fisheries for their livelihood.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

Democratic society is split by disastrous conflicts which will destroy us unless resolved. The civil war between labor and employer, now settled not by justice and law but by medieval trial by combat, kills our economy and rips up society.

The conflict of race which Wells declared was the cruelest evil of today creates social cleavage at home and odium abroad. The tension between youth and age is as old as history, but in times of social decay becomes bitter and ruinous.

Paul warned that when men are "blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy . . . swollen with conceit . . ." the end is in sight.

"Honor your father and mother" is elemental to a good society. Note how the commandment continues — "that thy days may be long in the land." Not merely long life, but long possession, depends on keeping the Commandment.

If you think we have no need for alarm, read Dr. Marion Hilliard, one of the greatest doctors of our day, who discusses "Why Premarital Sex Is Always Wrong" in the Ladies' Home Journal for September. When she asked students what "an honorable arrangement" was they didn't know what she was talking about. When she asked them if they honored their father and mother they answered flatly "no."

Adult Rule Denounced

Dr. Robert Fitch also describes a frightening experience of youth hostility to parents in "Y.P. Society at P.L. Church" (Christian Century, Sept. 10). The scene of a young girl bitterly denouncing her parents for all advice and restraint completely dismayed Dr. Fitch. The newspaper headlined the young people's discussion, "Teen-Ager Denounces Adults Rule."

Thomas Wolfe, in "You Can't Go Home Again," asks what "has happened to the spontaneous gaiety of youth" who are "without innocence, born old and stale and dull and empty . . . suckled on darkness?"

Many things have happened. Parents swallowed the vast gobbledygook of Freudian psychology that made homes fantastically child-centred. A child grew up with the idea that it was the duty of everyone to "understand him" and respond to every whim.

Sociological quackery drummed into parents that all children are good and if they go wrong parents are to blame. Such heady child idolatry leads to family and social anarchy. More, personality absorption prevents growth into responsible maturity.

At the other extreme are "the latchstring kids" who have no routine, eat what and when they like, have no fixed hours for anything. Their society has spawned a four-fold creed of violence and evil—easy liquor, easy money, easy love, and easy disciplines in which a fellow should aim at getting the most for doing the least on a "no-hour" work week if possible.

When society has thrown away the rest of the Ten Commandments, can they wonder if the Fifth goes too?

Anglicans Postpone Campaign

Plans have been put aside "temporarily" for a drive to raise funds among parishioners of the nearly 70 Anglican churches on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands for new churches and additions.

A committee set up to organize the drive has decided it would clash with individual campaigns being held by many churches. It will likely be reconsidered next year.

Bibles and Bears

Society Aims At New Record In Distribution

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Not long ago, the American Bible Society received an urgent letter from one of its distribution agents in northern Japan.

He reported he was being "grievously molested" by bears in his mountainous territory. He wanted a "good loud bell" to scare them away.

The society shipped him a bell by return mail.

"You have to be prepared for this sort of thing," said Dr. Robert T. Taylor, general secretary of the society, "if you are going to distribute Bibles on a global basis."

The American Bible Society was founded in 1816 to supply Bibles to families who were moving westward with America's frontier. The thoroughness with which it performed this mission was at least partly responsible for the fact that 19th-century America became a "Bible-reading nation."

Americans today are abundantly supplied with Bibles, whether they read them or not. So the society concentrates its efforts primarily on making the Scriptures available in other lands.

Last year it distributed more than 15,000,000 Bibles, Testaments and Gospels on every continent of the globe. This year [illegible] 1,000,000 more than [illegible]

"There is an increasing world demand for the Scriptures," Dr. Taylor said. "In the undeveloped countries, 20,000,000 adults are learning to read each year. For many of them, a Gospel in their own language could be their first reader—if supplies were adequate."

Taylor said Bible distribution is one form of Christian evangelism that has not been affected by the rising nationalism of Asian and African countries. The Bible is a product of the Middle East, and it is still welcome in many countries where [illegible] work severely handicapped by antagonism toward the Western white man.

Wealthy Island Man Sells Property

Rainbow's Pot of Gold

Barrett Montfort, who owns a 1,700-acre, $500,000 farm at Oyster River on Vancouver Island, this week saw another farm he owns in north Toronto turn out to be the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

The 80-acre tract is going to be the site of a $25,000,000 shopping centre, with a spectacular layout of 82 stores, to be known as the Yorkdale Plaza.

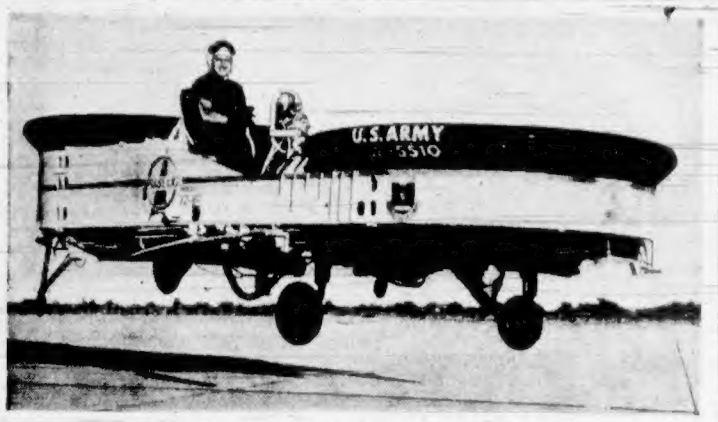
For the first time in Canada, the T. Eaton Company and the Robert Simpson Company will both have stores in the same shopping centre.

Mr. Montfort, an American millionaire, has created a reputation for himself as a benefactor of the University of British Columbia. In 1955 he made his Vancouver Island estate available to the university as a research farm. It is being used as a beef and cattle ranch, and hog production is also being studied. The trim farm buildings are a Vancouver Island landmark.

Mr. Montfort rented his Toronto farm to the T. Eaton Company about three or four years ago with an option to buy.

He is in Toronto at present, apparently concluding the sale of the property, and is not expected to return to Vancouver Island until next March.

A former banker, he managed the London branch of a United States banking concern before retiring some years ago.



Army's New Ground-Air Vehicle

This is the U.S. Army's new wingless ground-and-air vehicle, the VZ-8P. It is hovering off the ground a few feet after it had made its first flight. The "sky-car" is claimed to be the first vehicle to achieve both vertical lift and forward flight with two small horizontal rotor props contained within the body structure.

At Duncan

Land Rush Seen

DUNCAN — A minor land rush is expected here when the new 164-lot Centennial Heights subdivision goes on sale soon.

"Several people have already said they intend to camp at City Hall all night before the day the lots go on sale," city clerk Gordon M. Berry said.

Last contract for the development of the subdivision—blacktopping of roads—is expected to be called by tender next week by the city.

The subdivision, on 45 acres of land purchased from the Indian Department, is being developed by the National Housing Administration and the city, with all contract work being let by the city.

Only lights and power and telephone services remain to be installed.

Nov. 1 was set as the target date for completion of the subdivision, but Nov. 15 looks likelier.

Live Wire Flings Man To Death at Duncan

DUNCAN—A roar and a blinding flash when a Neon sign guy wire came into contact with a high-tension line triggered the death of Victoria workman Darrel Arthur Mummery, 28, evidence showed at an inquest here yesterday.

Witnesses said the neon sign company employee, of 3323 Linwood, was thrown from a ladder on which he was standing while lowering a sign from the old Legion Building here, and plunged to the pavement 30-feet below.

The dead man's partner of the job, Frank De Macedo, of 1168 Oxford, Victoria, told the inquest jury under Coroner Dr. J. S. Goodbrand, a string of Christmas tree lights that tangled with the loose guy wire from the sign, caused the accident.

Still suffering from burns to his arms and chest when he appeared at the inquest, the survivor of the freak accident, Thursday, said he had to feed the wire through a tangle of lights "instead of normally looking over the edge of the building while lowering the wire."

DIDN'T SEE BELOW

"I did not see what happened below," he told the jury. "As I was about to put the wire over the parapet I stepped forward to see if everything was clear . . .

"There was a roar and a blinding flash and I was knocked over backward on the roof.

"When I came to," the witness said, "I found the guy wire still lying across my chest. I thought it might be still hot and shook it from my body."

KILLED BY FALL?

Medical evidence was that the 28-year-old Mummery died of a skull fracture and other injuries suffered in the fall and not from the effects of the shock when the loose wire came in contact with the power line carrying 12,000 volts.

He was working near the top of the sign about 32 feet from the ground when the fatal accident occurred.

A witness, A. F. Price, said the sign worker "did not collapse," but fell horizontally from the ladder.

No blame was attached to anyone by the inquest jury.

The accident victim is survived by his wife, two children, and his parents in Victoria.

Five Hospitals Share $11,620

Five Vancouver Island hospitals shared $11,620 in grants authorized by the provincial government yesterday to defray cost of renovations.

Included were Rest Haven Hospital at Sidney, King's Daughters' Hospital at Duncan, St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospitals in Victoria and St. George's Hospital at Alert Bay.

Canucks Prep for Cats By Edging Stamps, 3-2

FAN FARE

By Walt Ditzen

Vancouver Here Tonight

Rookie Ted Hampson scored with less than five minutes left in the game last night to give the Canucks a 3-2 victory over Calgary Stampeders in Vancouver and boost them into a first-place tie in the western division of the Western Hockey League.

Hampson, taking a double relay from rookie linemates Dan Delisle and Mel Pearson, fired a backhand shot past Roy Edwards at the 15.19 mark to edge the tiring Stampeders before a crowd of 4,000.

In last night's only eastern division game, Dennis Riggin posted his second shutout in five games while Edmonton Flyers beat Saskatoon Quakers, 1-0, on a first-period goal by Gene Achtymichuk.

Canucks, who play Victoria Cougars at Memorial Arena tonight, are now tied for the western division lead with the Seattle Totems. Flyers, Stampeders and Quakers are deadlocked for the eastern division lead.

Canucks held a wide territorial edge in the fast-moving game at Vancouver, but couldn't make their passing plays work well enough to take advantage of it. Edwards helped make up the difference for the Stamps, blocking 31 shots in a great performance.

EASY TIME

Riggin, who has yet to give up a goal at Edmonton, had a relatively easy time in gaining his second shutout, blocking only 18 shots, nine of them in the final period. It was a different story in the Quaker nets, where Lucien Dechene kicked out 32 shots as the Quakers struggled to stretch their undefeated record to four games.

Defenceman Bill Burega of Saskatoon was off for boarding when Achtymichuk scored at 1.10 of the opening period, deflecting a long shot by Chuck Holmes past Dechene.

Cougars-Canucks Tonight

Defencemen Shaken Up

Victoria Cougars, winless in their first two Western Hockey League starts, will have a revamped lineup in action tonight when they meet Vancouver's young, hustling Canucks at Memorial Arena.

Coach Pat Egan said last night that he will bench rookie defenceman Dave Rimstad and shuffle his forward lines in an effort to find a winning combination for tonight's game.

Egan will use Don McLeod, veteran Carl Kaiser, Jim Hay and Jean-Marc Picard on the blue-line.

SUNNDAY GAME

John Yanchuk, who played with the Cougars last season, will not play tonight nor in Vancouver Sunday when the Canucks host the Cougars in the Western Hockey League's first Vancouver Sunday afternoon game.

Up front, Egan will have Enio Sclisizzi and Doug Macauley flanking centre Doug Anderson on one attacking unit.

Clare Wakshinski, who came up to the Cougars from Penticton at the end of last season, will make his first start this year, playing between newcomers Murray Wilkie and George Ford.

The Cougars' other forward line will be comprised of centre Gordie Haworth and wingers Al Nicholson and Stan Baluik.

NO CUTS

Egan said no players will be cut until next Thursday, when he expects to cut the club's roster to 15 players. At present a club can only dress 14 players, but several clubs are reported seeking a 15-player limit.

"We'll probably keep 15 players until we know what the situation is," Egan said.

Tonight's game, which will be the second in as many nights for the Canucks, will start at 8 p.m., as do all of the Cougars' Saturday night games. Games played during the week start at 8.30 p.m.

Lindskog Family Packing

VANCOUVER (CP)—Columnist Eric Whitehead writes in The Province that Vic Lindskog is being squeezed out as line coach of the British Columbia Lions.

Whitehead quotes Lindskog as saying he and his wife have decided to "pack up and leave" as soon as the Western Interprovincial Football Union season is over. "There is obviously no future for us here."

Lindskog has not been fired, nor told that he would not be re-hired at the end of the season. However, says Whitehead, "Never was a football coach caught in a more humiliating, thankless squeeze than is Lindskog.

BEGAN WITH DAN

"The squeeze of course began when Dan Edwards was hired as head coach; it worsened when assistant coach Walt Schlinkman quit and another ex-player, Ed Sharkey, became a full-time coach."

The day Edwards was hired to replace the deposed Clem Crowe, says Whitehead, it became obvious to Lindskog that whatever happened the rest of the season, he had to be the loser.

Vic Team Captures X-Country

Cross-country running for 1958-59 started in usual fashion yesterday with Victoria High School taking the honors as a field of 65 raced over a 3.4-mile course at Vic High.

Fred Waters of Shawnigan was first across the line in 18 minutes 23 seconds, closely followed by John Cliff of Vic High in 18.25.

Simon Princenburg, Tommy Burgess, Jim Robertson, Brian MacDonald, and Allan Valiant, all Vic runners, captured the next five positions, while teammates Palle Jensen and Martin Jay filled spots nine and ten.

Other teams taking part, in their order of finish, were Shawnigan Lake Boys' School, the Navy, University School, the PPCLI, HMCS Venture, and the Canadian Scottish.

With this win, Vic High regained possession of the Lonsdale Log, a trophy up for competition between Vic and Shawnigan only.

The team from Venture raced under a severe handicap because most of its best runners were not available for competition.

Chuvalo No Match for Tacoman

Pat McMurtry of Tacoma lands right to head of Toronto's George Chuvalo in fifth round of their 10-round, televised heavyweight bout at Madison Square Garden last night. McMurtry completely outclassed Canadian heavyweight champion, scoring unanimous decision over his less-experienced opponent, who is ranked 10th in the heavyweight division by Ring Magazine.

Canadian Champ Beaten by McMurtry

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Pat McMurtry, staggered in the second round, chopped up young George Chuvalo of Toronto Friday night on the way to a unanimous decision in a blood-spattered 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden. Chuvalo bled from the nose and cuts around the eyes in the lopsided match. Chuvalo weighed 207½, McMurtry 188½.

After the second round this was strictly no contest with McMurtry, 26-year-old Tacoma, Wash., boxer, romping home an easy winner. Using a jaring left jab and a right uppercut, Irish Pat took complete control.

Chuvalo, a heavy-legged left hooker, made it interesting for two rounds. A hook to the head staggered McMurtry at the one-minute mark of the second round. Two more hooks thudded home and it seemed for a moment that McMurtry surely must go down. But he shook off the punches while the 21-year-old Canadian gasped for air. This inability to continue his stout attack cost Chuvalo dearly.

At the start of the third, McMurtry, a rangy fellow who has 32 previous pro fights to Chuvalo's 14, found his weapon. It was his left jab that soon had Chuvalo, the slugger, backing up instead of crowding. Soon Chuvalo was breathing hard with his mouth open, coughing periodically as though the blood from his nose hindered his breathing.

All three officials had McMurtry way out in front. Referee Ruby Goldstein scored it 8-1-1, giving Chuvalo only the second with the first even. Judge Artie Aidala had it 7-3, voting the first, second and ninth to the Canadian. Judge Frank Forbes' card of 8-2 gave McMurtry all but the first and the ninth. The AP (8-2) card showed only the first and second for Chuvalo.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Notre Dame football teams coached by the late Knute Rockne compiled a .898 winning percentage. From 1918 through 1930 they won 105 games, lost 12, and tied 5.

Drakes Crowd All-Stars; Tangle with Thunderbirds

Oak Bay Drakes, who take on UBC Thunderbirds tonight at Royal Athletic Park, have placed 10 men on the Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football League all-star club for the second straight year.

Results of voting among the league's three coaches and representatives of press and radio show that halfbacks Bill Schick of Navy and Charlie Bishop of Mayo Vampires were the only outsiders to crack Oak Bay's virtual monopoly of all-star ratings.

Playing-coach Jack Patrick was chosen as quarterback for the second straight year. League scoring champion Ken Higgs and veteran Red White completed the backfield.

The front line was an all-Drake affair. Til Briggs and Pete Turko were named at end, with Trev West and Joe Kurylo at tackle, Len Stoker and Ivor Jenkins at guard, and Leo Kozak at centre.

Kurylo and Turko, who both made the club for the third straight year, were unanimous choices along with Patrick and Jenkins, who were named two years running.

Higgs scored 54 points in four games to win the scoring title. Turko was second with 42 points while Schick, the most consistent runner on the Navy club, scored 30 points on five touchdowns.

BEST YEAR

Bishop, who missed the all-star club last year after making it in 1956, enjoyed one of his best years and was tied with rookie Cliff Moore of the Drakes for fourth place in the scoring.

Patrick indicated last night that the Drakes are in top shape for tonight's game at 8 p.m. against the Thunderbirds. Only doubtful starter is Briggs, and he will probably see action.

From Vancouver, reports indicate that quarterback Jack Henwood may not be in the line-up for the Birds tonight. Henwood has a leg injury, and will likely be replaced by Wayne Aiken, a promising 190-pounder from Calgary.

Heaneys and Brodies Jackson Cup Opener

Heaneys and Brodie's Bakery have been drawn to open the straight knockout tournament for the Jackson Cup, emblematic of Lower Island soccer supremacy, and will meet Oct. 25 at Royal Athletic Park.

In other first-round games, all of which will be played on Saturdays, Victoria Kickers meet Tillicums, Butler Brothers play Esquimalt and Gorge Hotel meets Canadian Scottish.

Vancouver Pilseners of the Pacific Coast Soccer League will play an exhibition game against a team of all-stars from the Victoria and District Football League in Victoria Nov. 11.

In today's league action, Victoria Kickers and league-leading Canadian Scottish meet at Heywood Avenue Park.

Sunday, Heaneys face Tillicums at Heywood Avenue Park, Esquimalt plays Butler Brothers at Central Park, Ladysmith hosts Brodie's Bakery and Gorge Hotel travels to Nanaimo.

All games start at 2 p.m.

Backstroke Champ Wheaton Shines At Oak Bay Gala

House I, paced by Canadian backstroke champion Bob Wheaton, made up for a last-place finish last year by capturing the annual Oak Bay High School swimming gala championship at Crystal Garden.

House 1 piled up a total of 111 points in the 19-event gala. Defending-champion House II was second with 92 points; House III was third with 78 points, and House IV trailed the field with 74 points.

Results of last night's gala helps coaches determine the school team that will defend the Sir Edward Beatty Trophy in the annual Senior Schools' Gala next Friday night at Crystal Garden.

The Bays, perennial winners of the event, are favored to repeat and are also expected to be strong contenders for a third straight B.C. title in a meet Nov. 22 at Vancouver.

FASTEST TIME

Wheaton, who swam for Canada in the British Empire Games at Cardiff, swam the 50-yard backstroke in 26.8 seconds, the fastest time he has ever posted in the Crystal Garden pool. He also won the 50-yard senior breaststroke in 36.5 seconds, and swam anchor in the senior relay, perhaps the most exciting race of the gala.

Wheaton trailed House IV by 15 yards when he started the last lap, but turned in a great burst of speed to win by inches at the finish.

Only other double winner in the gala was Sally Holland of House II, who took the senior 50-yard freestyle in 27.9 seconds and won the 50-yard breaststroke in 42 seconds.

Bowling Alley Roundup

High Fivepin Triple Set

By Jim Taylor

Ron Cush set a season high three fivepin record at Capital City Bowling Alley this week, rolling a 926 (302, 318, 306) series in the Thanksgiving Day doubles tournament.

However, in spite of Cush's series, posted in the first three games of the 10-game tourney, he and Vic Harrison had to settle for second place with a total of 5,176.

Top prize went to Dick Hall and Dave Allan, who combined for a 5,363 total. Emile Liska and Wes Vogler were third at 5114; Jack Goldie and Cy Waters placed fourth with 5,076, and Reg Waggoner and Harry Cool took fifth place with a 5,057 series. All totals include 70% handicap.

The tournament produced several good series, and there were seven three-game totals in the 800 bracket.

Dick Hall was runner-up to Cush with 885 (328). Other top bowlers on the Capital City lanes were Reg Waggoner, 841 (334, 318); Keith Todd, 825 (323, 326); Bob Hodges, 815; Harry Smith, 812 (342, 338), and Emile Liska, 806 (317). Wilf Gregory, down from Nanaimo for the tourney, turned in an 854 (307).

Red Lawson, 609 (223); George Motion, 571; Harold Paulding, 566 (202); Dave Williams, 549; Ralph Baker, 549 (212); Ray Rivers, 547, and Lloyd Chow, 540 (208), were the lanes' other top bowlers.

New Hawk Heroes

Speaking Briefly

Is This Chicago's Year?

Chicago Black Hawks, a blend of promising rookies and National Hockey League castoffs, are beginning to look like Stanley Cup contenders after four dismal years during which they missed the post-season playoffs.

Having jumped the league with three victories and a tie in four starts, will be seeking their fourth straight victory today when they host the Detroit Red Wings in a televised National Hockey League game. Game time is 10 a.m. (PST).

Boston plays the Maple Leafs in Toronto in another televised game at 5 p.m., and New York is at Montreal.

If the Hawks do wind up a Stanley Cup contender, most of the credit must go to Tommy Ivan, who came to Chicago at the beginning of the 1954-55 season after coaching the Detroit Red Wings to six straight league titles.

Ivan rebuilt the Hawks' farm system and to date it has produced three top-notch performers in centre Bobby Hull, rookie of the year last season, rookie Johnny McKenzie and defenceman Elmer Vasko, who suffered a shoulder injury Thursday and will be out of action for two weeks.

Three defencemen picked up by Ivan at the NHL's summer draft meeting also have played a major role in the team's early success.

They are Al Arbour, Jack Evans and Dollard St. Laurent, all of whom Ivan says have "played up to, and occasionally, beyond our expectations."

Tod Sloan, acquired from Toronto after nine seasons with the Leafs, and Danny Lewicki, picked up on waivers from Montreal, have played "tremendously" for the Hawks, Ivan said.

Heavyweight Boxer Fined After Ruckus

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian heavyweight boxer James J. Parker, convicted here Thursday of creating a disturbance and causing bodily harm, was fined $125 and $50 costs or 40 days in jail. A charge of criminal negligence was dismissed.

Parker was charged last August with John J. Congdon, 47, following a fight between a road repair gang and the two men. Police said Parker drove his car over a snow fence barrier and into freshly poured concrete.

If Roughriders Triumph

Playoffs Settled Today

Saskatchewan Roughriders host Calgary's desperate Stampeders in a televised game this afternoon with a chance to settle once and for all the muddied playoff picture in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

A Saskatchewan victory would assure both Saskatchewan and Edmonton Eskimos of a playoff berth along with Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Stampeders must win to stay within reach of third place and the last playoff spot. (The game will be televised on Channels 2 and 6 at noon PST.)

If Calgary should win, the Esks can still wrap up a berth in the playoffs tonight when they play B.C.'s resurgent Lions in Vancouver. Should both the Esks and Roughrider win today, the Bombers will need a win against the Riders in Winnipeg Monday.

To make a complicated situation even more so, almost all the teams concerned are nursing long injury lists going into today's action.

Stampeders have lost halfback Harvey Wylie for the season. Chuck Holloway has been slowed down by an injury, and quarterback Knobby Wirkowski is still hampered with an injured back. They go against a Saskatchewan club that will be at full strength.

Few are conceding Edmonton a victory in Vancouver, considering the Lions' three-game winning streak. However both clubs are crippled. Coach Sam Lyle reports that the Esks will be without Steve Bendiak and Gino Fracas and that Jackie Parker, Johnny Bright, Rollie Miles, Joe Mobra and Normie Kwong will all be operating at half speed.

NO VEREB

On the other hand, Lions will be without Ed Vereb, and will send Jerry Janes, Joe Yamauchi and Bill Britton into the game nursing injuries.

Coach Bud Grant is returning Kenny Ploen to the Bomber lineup as a halfback, leaving Jim Van Pelt in the quarterback slot he has handled so capably in the last six games.

In the Big Four the situation is much the same. Toronto Argonauts, fresh from their 37-0 win over Hamilton Tiger-Cats, play the Rough Riders in Ottawa in an attempt to keep their slim playoff hopes alive. Ottawa has won nine of its last 10 games against Toronto.

In the other Big Four game, Montreal Alouettes play the Ti-Cats at Hamilton. The Als trail Ottawa by a single point and need a win to stay within striking distance of the first-place Ti-Cats.

At Ottawa, the Argos will be looking to Ronnie Knox to pass them into contention against the Rough Riders, who have given up only 25 points in their last three games against Toronto.

Auto Shares Featured At New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 1958 bull market surged ahead to within touching distance of its record high on the heaviest volume since the first session after President Eisenhower's heart attack — the session of Sept. 26, 1955.

Apparently all the influence of the 90 per cent margins put into effect Thursday had worn off and the market encountered vast amounts of new buying. This was so heavy that for the first hour and a half of the session the trading clogged the tickers which fell behind as much as five minutes.

Toward noon profit-taking erased some of the early gains, but the respite was brief and the rise resumed with more vigor in the afternoon until the industrial average came within a fraction of its record set last Monday before two sessions of sharp decline.

The street stressed the apparently good reception of new automobiles as a number one buying incentive. Also there were indications of higher copper prices ahead, some favorable corporation reports and a 3-for-1 stock split proposal and higher dividend for Kroger—up 5 points.

There were several other market sensations. Studebaker-Packard rose nearly 2 points to a new high and swept the whole auto section up with it. American Motors, second in volume, rose more than a point to a new high. General Motors and Continental Motors rose a point each.

Widespread Gains

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market scored its best advance this week, paced by industrials and base metals.

Western oils, with a 1.24 advance, closed at a 1958 high of 144.16, surpassing a mark set Oct. 15.

Canada Malting added 3 at 68 to lead industrials. Gaining more than 1 point were CPR, up 1⅜ at 29¾, Dominion Stores, 1½ at 73½ and Trans-Mountain Pipe Line, 1⅛ at 12⅛.

Among base metals Noranda was ahead 2 points at 55. Labrador added 1 at 23¼. Coppers remained active with Geco ahead ⅛ at 18⅛.

Macfie was the most active speculative. It traded 598,600 shares, losing 6 cents at 22 cents. Lencourt traded 201,000 shares, gaining 3½ cents at 15½.

Hollinger added 1 at 28½ to lead golds while western oils received their boost from a handful of seniors. Pembina gained ½ at 9½ and Pacific Pete was up ⅜ at 20⅞.

Oils in Demand

VANCOUVER — Oils made a strong finish to the week. United led the way at 2.55 while Pacific advanced to $20¾ in active trading.

Fort St. John was higher at 3.95 but Charter slipped 8 cents to 1.97.

Mines were mixed. Bethlehem rose to 1.08 and Silver Standard to 17 cents, but New Hamil was lower at 20 cents.

B.C. Forest Products at $13, MacMillan at $34¾; Trans-Mountain at $12¼ and B-A Oil at $41¼ gained among industrials.

Oh, There's So Much to Do First

Girls Want Careers Before Wedding Bells

Eugenia Crowley, 15, 3650 Telegraph Road, wants to be a teacher and Sherry Ekins, 15, 7[illegible] Page Road, wants to be an actress, but neither girl is sure yet just what sort of teacher and actress they want to be.

Stall Needs Vegetables

Victoria's surplus food stall has received "apples galore" in the last few days, its operator, Mrs. E. E. Harper, said yesterday, but vegetables and financial help are still needed for the 200 people expected to turn out at the public market today.

"We use the money," she said, "to buy stewing meat, powdered milk, margarine and oatmeal, just essentials."

Exotic Costumes At Lantern Fete

Modeling of exotic Chinese costumes will be one of the highlights of a Centennial Lantern Festival at the Sikorsky next Wednesday.

The festival is being sponsored by the Canadian Lions Club to raise funds for extension of the Chinese Hospital.

It will be opened by Mrs. Eric Martin, wife of the minister of health and welfare, and will be open from 2 to 5 and 7 to 11 p.m.

In addition to stalls, a bazaar and tea, there will be entertainment [illegible] meet, not all with a Chinese theme.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

After nearly two years, tomorrow's column is my last in this space about TV in general and each day's programs in particular.

I'd like to thank those who have phoned and written to ask questions, make comments and otherwise show an informed interest in TV and to the hardest working men in television, those who do such a job supplying this column with program information.

TV is a much more powerful influence on our life than movies ever were, so I urge viewers to keep sending their opinions to CHEK, the CBC and the American stations.

In the foreseeable future, if the trend doesn't pick up the bulk of TV will be "broadcast home" programs that expensive, know, most viewers can't remember. That includes pay-TV which I am sure will not come until the public wants it.

Only exceptions I can see this season are the special specials. Sunday afternoon viewing CBC dramas and ballets and for oddities like Jack Paar, which last isn't enough. Perhaps one day TV will regain its present good rating, coupled with intelligent editing. But its real strength lies in the day-to-day shows. And it is getting worse as all your own standards and do what you can for them.

* * *

TV BITS: Best bet today is the hour-long special on channel 4 at 7:30 p.m. where her guests and there are several good spots. Tomorrow, Little Women, set to play on CBS was taken off, as Joyce Randolph Robinson, last two months of filming on NBC's Mr. Ed's Rascals, passed a standard check on the set. NBC was unable to find another straight. Lone Venture of Connecticut, produced by Jack Benny and Hesper Lick Bates, was cancelled. Perry Mason, Dick Powell's new, be the anthology on Person to Person on CBS.

Debbie Reynolds may hand up a CBS variety hour and be Lucy's successor. Lucy's series has plans for a program based on Lucy's own series, which have been cancelled. Peter McDonald, age of Vancouver, has been named chief of TV programming for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation at Toronto. Dot Dominion's LP of Steve Allen's Wake Up, Lucy? quizzes of mystery guests in the days Steve Allen was on the page.

Police Move In on Besieged Gunmen

Pistols drawn and crouching to avoid bullets, Toronto police move in on gunmen's apartment after armed robbery of a drug store touched off a wild gunfight in which more than 100 rounds were fired in 20 minutes. One desperado was arrested on the spot; another was caught later. But the third, Albert Stoutley, 40, escaped, launching the biggest manhunt in the area since the Boyd gang was operating. Holiday crowds at train, bus and air terminals were still being screened yesterday for signs of the gunman. Rookie policeman Harold Mulvogue, 25, injured in the gunfight, has been given a 50-50 chance of survival.

Ula Ula Oops Storm Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Hula hoop has hit Mexico.

Called the Ula Ula, it first went on sale for 12½ pesos, or $1. Within a few days it had the city jumping and bumping.

This started when Morris Caldwell, a retired American living in Mexico, took a summer vacation in California.

He saw the hoops around San Gabriel and thought they might click in Mexico. On his return, he and a friend, Henry William Jones, went into partnership.

Copyrighting the name Ula Ula, they began making hoops in Mexico.

Woolworth was the first customer, buying 5,000 to start with. Its two Mexico City outlets sold about 20 on a Wednesday, about 40 Thursday.

Saturday sales soared to 1,200 stores were sold out.

"We make about 10,000 hoops a day and can't fill the demand," says Caldwell. "Our telephone rings steadily and I can't get any sleep."

Woolworth buyer John W. Hammond said he expects the Ula Ula fad to last about three months.

Sloan to Hear Licence Issue Here Monday

Granting of the licence was appealed, but the decision was never made and the government is now turning to Mr. Sloan for advice.

Peace Hydro

Public Firm First

BURNS LAKE (CP) — The B.C. Power Commission will be given first offering of power to be developed by the proposed Wenner-Gren Peace River project in Northern British Columbia.

Premier Bennett, addressing a meeting here Thursday night, said the initial work on construction of the multi-million-dollar project will begin in 1960.

He said the government had been told the proposed 4,000,000-horse-power project would not be of use to lower mainland consumers as the power could not be transmitted that far. But he said he knew of methods of transmitting the power over that distance.

To cries of "It's a giveaway," from a member of the audience, the premier said: "We are not giving a nickel to Wenner-Gren."

PRESS CRITICSM

Earlier at Smithers the premier said that critical newspapers in "the big city" had done more to re-elect him than anything else.

He said these same papers declared they couldn't see over Burrard Inlet for the smog.

"They should see the rest of the province as I am doing," he said, "to visualize the vast potentials awaiting development."

Trash Man Gives Up His Crest

KIVETON, England (CP)—Garbage collector Peter Hands has given up the idea of wearing the Kiveton coat of arms on his new £5 blazer.

This settles a problem for the rural council, which had asked for time to think about his original request. One member had called the idea a "mockery."

Hands, 25, said he wanted to wear the coat of arms because he liked his job, he liked the crest and he never before owned either a blazer or a crest. But when the council hesitated, the garbage collector became famous in England. He was even invited to appear on television, but he refused.

He won't say why he withdrew the request: "My reasons are private." However, he said he "did not like all the fuss and publicity."

Ernest Needham, clerk of the council, said, "I understand he had his leg pulled a good deal about his idea."

Ottawa Studying Plan

Civil Air Patrol May Aid Defense

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's civilian pilots and aircraft owners soon may play a role in an expanded Canadian civil defence setup.

Federal authorities now are actively considering the use of civil aircraft in support of civil defence operations and in search and rescue work.

A government policy announcement is expected within the next two or three weeks.

Any plan for the use of civilian aircraft for civil defence likely would place them under provincial jurisdiction. The federal government would provide financial support.

One government official said Wednesday that civilian pilots and aircraft owners interested in search work could expect what he termed a favorable announcement.

Formation of a Canadian air patrol or emergency air corps within the civil defence framework has been urged for a number of years by organizations representing civilian pilots and aircraft owners. These organizations also have proposed that civilian aircraft should work in conjunction with the RCAF Search and Rescue squadrons.

Bonner on Prison Control:

Improvement Doubtful If Ottawa Takes Over

It is doubtful that Ottawa's control of B.C.'s highly developed prison system would be an improvement upon that of the present provincial adminstration, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Thursday.

He was commenting on this week's federal-provincial conference on prison reform, held at Ottawa, where it was agreed that eventually the federal government should take over responsibility for all offenders sentenced to one year or more in prison.

The provinces also agreed in principle that virtually all of the 44 recommendations in the 1956 Fauteux committee report should be accepted as the basis for penal reform.

"British Columbia would not be willing to consider giving up its prison administration unless, or until, it was convinced that Dominion plans—as yet incomplete—guaranteed a system as good or better than the program developed in B.C. during the last six years," Mr. Bonner said.

"B.C. took the position during the conference that we doubted that the laudable objectives of the Fauteux committee could best be achieved by further centralizing the control of even a reformed national prison system in the hands of Dominion authorities," he said.

He was a member of the Canadian Legion, Pro Patria branch and belonged to the White Cane Club for several years.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Muriel Haime, at home, and three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Saturday Training Attracts Reservists

EDMONTON (CP)—A new training scheme attracted 150 young recruits to the Loyal Edmonton Regiment (reserve) last year.

It is a schedule of Saturday training for high school students more than 16 years of age, with monthly rather than yearly pay.

The scheme was designed by Col. R. A. Bradburn, commander of 23 Militia Group, and approved by Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, general commanding officer of Western Command.

This year it is being extended to all local militia groups and it has already been broadened to take in nearly all reserve army units in Edmonton. Thus students can train in the branch of service in which they are most interested.

"Discipline, physical development and a better understanding of the responsibility of citizenship is stressed through the training period," says Col. Bradburn.

"The financial assistance is putting boys through high school and has proved helpful to many parents."

Last year, the army obtained summer employment for all applicants who trained with the Loyal Edmontons. The job assistance program will be continued in 1959.

Mess Halls Replacing Home Cooking

HONG KONG (AP)—Home cooking is on the way out in Red China in favor of mess hall feeding.

Chinese press reports give this picture:

"All the people eat together in the mess halls and whole families and all people lead a collective life. Women can be freed from household labor connected with cooking and can devote all their labor power to production. The production enthusiasm of each person can be brought in play, and much grain can be saved all over the country."

Ocean Hop Starts Boeing Jet Service

BRUSSELS (AP)—Pan American World Airways inaugurated American transatlantic jet passenger service yesterday with a Baltimore-Brussels flight that averaged about 540 miles an hour.

The Boeing 707 jet airliner with its crew and 39 guest passengers completed 3,910 miles in seven hours, 15 minutes flying time.

Before its takeoff from Baltimore Thursday, the 165-passenger plane was christened "Jet Clipper America" by Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Pan American plans to inaugurate regular trans-Atlantic jet service Oct. 26 and to begin daily service Nov. 17.

British Overseas Airways Corporation's Comet jets got the jump on Pan American, inaugurating once-weekly New York-London service Oct. 4. BOAC also had planned to be first with daily service, beginning Nov. 14. But maintenance men at London airport went on strike Monday against the airline and BOAC said it would be unable to complete training of Comet crews in time to make the schedule.

LONDON (Reuters)—A British Overseas Airways Corporation strike at London airport threatened today to spread to overseas airfields and to involve British European Airways, the other publicly-owned British airline.

The biggest part of Sweden's iron ore mining industry is north of the Arctic Circle.

Overseas Mailers:

Prepare Now To Avoid Rush

Post Office officials yesterday called on residents here to mail Christmas parcels to friends and relatives overseas as early as possible.

Last-minute mailings may not be carried on steamers in time to ensure Christmas delivery.

Deadline for air-mail letters and parcels to Great Britain are Dec. 13 and Dec. 11 respectively; [illegible] Dec. 11 and parcels before Dec. 9. Surface mail letters must be sent off before Nov. 22 and parcels before Nov. 19.

Postal officials say all parcels must contain only bona fide gifts and must be clearly marked "Gift Parcel."

Substances which may leak must be enclosed in leak-proof corrugated cardboard. Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Roumania and the Soviet Zone of Germany prohibit entry of tinned food.

All mail should be correctly addressed in ink and fully prepaid. A return address should appear on each letter and parcel and a slip with complete address of the sender and the receiver should be enclosed in each parcel.

Policewomen 'Tops on Beat'

TORONTO (CP) — Increased duties and possible promotions are in store for Toronto's policewomen because of their efficiency.

"They're tops on the beat," said Magistrate C. O. Bick, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission, "and the success we've had with them makes us want to expand their operations. They will have other duties later on."
